Message to Minister

Honourable Shirley Bond
Minister of Justice
Victoria, BC

Dear Minister:

On behalf of the Board of Directors, the Registrar, the management and staff of the Motor Vehicle Sales Authority of British Columbia (VSA), it is a privilege for me to present the Annual Report for the year ending March 31, 2012.

Originally established as the Motor Dealer Council of British Columbia, the VSA was formed in 2004 as a delegated administrative authority that would regulate the motor dealer industry both legislatively and administratively by:

- Delivering public services for consumers and industry
- Administering and enforcing the Motor Dealer Act and the Business Practices and Consumer Protection Act as it relates to the retail sale of motor vehicles

The VSA continues to build a successful motor vehicle sales marketplace through education and compliance, upholding the framework of a professional industry and encouraging responsible consumers.

As a not-for-profit organization, the VSA is led by an eleven-member Board of Directors of vehicle sales industry representatives, government appointees and members of the general public.

Sincerely yours,

Graeme Roberts
Chair

Chair's Message

This 2012 Annual Report finds the Motor Vehicle Sales Authority of British Columbia, having completed nearly eight years of operation. The report also marks the close of my third year on the VSA Board of Directors as a member at-large, including two years as Chair.

The past twelve months have been what might well be considered as a significant juncture and turning point. Under the leadership of Ken Smith, founding President and Registrar, an organization with professional staff, dedicated to implementing and carrying out policies based on our legislated mandate was put into place. Despite many goals being achieved, frustrations voiced by industry stakeholders became very evident. A challenge was placed to the Board of Directors with their diversified interests, skills, knowledge and experience to address these concerns.

I am pleased to report that the year has concluded with a number of these being addressed. Circumstantial timing precipitated action involving a change in leadership and specific organizational re-structure. The notice in November by Ken Smith of an earlier than anticipated retirement brought about the engaging of a recognized British Columbia firm, experts in executive personnel selection and placement. A decision was made to appoint our Deputy Registrar, Ian Christman, as Registrar. It is my belief that the President and Registrar playing two distinct and separated roles will help further the original vision of an open and respected motor dealer industry, a self-managed governing body working with government embracing regulatory safeguards for the consumer.

Interviews with prospective candidates for the position of President were ongoing at the end of the fiscal year. Subsequent to fiscal year end, Jay Chambers, formerly General Manager of the British Columbia Liquor Distribution Branch, was appointed President effective July 9, 2012.

Other key challenges remain to be addressed. We will continue to work diligently with the Provincial Government emphasizing the need to bring about a fair and equitable formula in terms of funding, such burden presently borne entirely by the industry. Despite innovative partnerships and joint initiatives with other agencies, the identifying and prosecution of and penalties dealt out to curbers, those engaged in the sale of vehicles without a licence, must remain a key priority. In this regard, specific changes in legislation are required and strong representation to government at both the local M.L.A. and Cabinet levels is an important objective.

As Chair, a person with a long term automobile background and fond attachment to the vehicle sales industry, I have not wavered in my commitment to work wholeheartedly and diligently with all VSA stakeholders, the Automobile Retailers Association, the New Car Dealers Association, the Recreational Vehicle Dealers Association, the Provincial Government, our Board of Directors, and management and staff to achieve the goals that have been set.

I am encouraged to believe that fairness, common sense and the best interests of those whom we collectively represent and serve will prevail.

Sincerely,
Graeme Roberts
Chair

Message from the Registrar

Moving forward and finding value

The decision to separate the President and Registrar roles has provided an opportunity to look back at where the VSA came from and look at where it needs to go. When the VSA was created in 2004, the government gave it the task of administering the Motor Dealer Act. For the first time in British Columbia this included licensing motor vehicle salespeople and providing them with training. In 2006, government added the responsibility to administer a relatively new piece of legislation, the Business Practices and Consumer Protection Act.

In the past eight years, the VSA has been focused on understanding those laws, educating the industry about those laws, setting up processes to meet government and industry demands and expectations – all the while continuing to answer the call from consumers to review their complaints. It has not been an easy eight years and sometimes those expectations were not met. It is important to learn from these shortfalls.

The VSA has reached a turning point in its evolution. It has matured. It has grown into the mandate government established. It has created processes to meet that mandate in a fair manner and continues to look for better and more cost-effective ways to do so. It has recognized the value of seeking compliance before problems occur. The VSA prefers to prevent problems through dialogue and education. However, it remains ready to respond in appropriate circumstances with all the regulatory tools at its disposal.

This evolution from enforcement to compliance is reflected in the dramatic decrease in formal compliance actions. For example, there were more than 60 hearings before the Registrar in 2008. This year there were just 20 hearings, mostly contested licensing applications. This is a reflection not only of the work the VSA is doing, but the work and commitment from the industry.

The past year has seen the start of a change in leadership at the VSA, with the announcement of the retirement of President and Registrar Ken Smith as of April 30, 2012, and my appointment as Registrar on March 1, 2012. Internally, the VSA embarked on restructuring some of its departments, and reassigning some of its personnel. We believe the benefits are already materializing.

The next chapter for the VSA is to engage the industry and consumers in dialogue about their respective rights and obligations. We need to better understand the issues faced by the industry and be available to provide guidance and flexible options in complying with legislation. Of equal importance is the need to educate consumers about how to buy motor vehicles responsibly, particularly the perils of buying from unlicensed and unregulated persons. The VSA needs to be seen as a resource for industry and consumers alike.

On a final note, the purpose of regulation is to keep everyone on the same road following known guidelines to successfully achieve a goal. This cannot occur without the cooperation of all participants. The value the VSA provides is the means to gain that cooperation so that we reach our goal. The goal of the VSA is that the citizens of British Columbia are confident in the vehicle sales industry.

Sincerely,
Ian Christman
Registrar

Licensing

This past year saw an increase in dealer group consolidations and a growing trend of owner retirements. The licensing department has worked diligently to expedite these consolidations and changes in ownership, while completing the necessary due diligence.

The resistance to the Level II Certification Course eased off this past year. The industry responded positively to the Level II course and word has spread that the course provides good value. Many salespeople signed up for the Level II course well before their deadline dates, alleviating the licensing department's burden.

Representatives from the New Car Dealers Associations (NCDA), Recreational Vehicle Dealers Associations (RVDA), and the Automotive Retailers Association (ARA) continued to contact the Manager of Licensing regarding licensing issues involving their association members. This ongoing communication allowed the three associations to better assist their members with any licensing concerns. It also became an invaluable way for the VSA to assess the impact of its licensing policies and procedures to identify better and quicker ways to deliver services.

This past year saw significant growth in the number of off-site sale requests. The licensing staff was proactive in assisting dealerships applying for off-site sale permits. In recognition of charitable work of British Columbia dealers, the VSA created an off-site fee waiver program for dealers displaying and promoting vehicle sales for charitable purposes.

Compliance

The compliance team had a very busy year due to the increased number of complex investigations. Mergers and the increase in dealer groups have shown both benefits and burdens for the compliance department.

Dealer groups can be beneficial, as there is a centralized person to interact with and the message is received by all the dealers. The burden arises if there has been non-compliance due to an erroneous business process. In those circumstances, that process is usually dealer group-wide, causing an increase in the number of affected consumers and complaints. This leads to more individual investigations. Overall, however, dealing with a dealer group is easier.

A new position was created at the VSA called the Compliance Support Officer. This position assists compliance officers with outstanding inspections and certain aspects of an investigation. This allows a Compliance Officer to focus on their investigative skills.

The “report-a-curber” program was beneficial in identifying prolific curbers (unlicensed dealers). The introduction of proactive investigations has enabled efficient and cost-effective enforcement in this area. Several curbers were re-licensed as salespersons, bringing them back into the industry and into compliance. The industry itself is assisting in controlling curbers by cutting off the supply of vehicles, making it harder for curbers to obtain product to sell. The VSA continued to work with provincial agencies, municipalities and the Canadian Revenue Agency on the issue of curbers.

Compliance officers reported an increase in calls from the industry seeking advice before any formal complaints are filed. Some call before instigating a new business process to obtain guidance on proper compliance. This type of cooperation is going far to reduce the need for formal compliance action.

The compliance team continues to develop relationships with various agencies that assist us in our investigations. As a result, joint investigations have occurred. This has increased the understanding of our industry within these agencies, which will be of benefit going forward.

Learning

The current year saw few course changes, other than content updates and corrections, to Level I and Level II Salesperson Certification Courses. The courses continue to provide valuable interaction for the VSA with both new and experienced members of the industry. Facilitation and classroom resources were provided by three experienced facilitators and VSA staff, including the Registrar and regional compliance officers.

Education remains a primary strategy for reaching the VSA goal of compliance. The courses provide a comprehensive foundation in relevant legislation and its application in day-to-day situations. With a history of over 20,000 consumer enquiries and nearly 5,000 investigations to draw on, both courses are experience-based, not theoretical.

The web-based Level I option successfully served participants from outside the Lower Mainland and the Greater Victoria region again this year. Failure rates remained lower and overall test scores slightly higher for the web-based classes. Evaluations for both classroom and web-based formats continued to be positive.

Ongoing Level II classes provided an opportunity for the Registrar to meet in person with industry veterans from across the province. The curriculum is grounded in best practices acquired from real world examples, including strategies on how to limit dealership risk and enhance professional conduct.

Consumer Services

Consumer Services played an important role in continuing to build a fair motor vehicle sales marketplace, with the operations of the department being both reactive and proactive.

The primary department activity remains the consumer enquiry line (accepting and acting upon complaints from the public regarding alleged improper practices.) However, engaging consumers to act responsibly as they participate in the motor vehicle marketplace remains a secondary focus. Whatever the outcome, the dialogue with consumers begins with phone calls and emails reporting problems or asking for help.

In addition to responding to consumer enquiries, the VSA provides resources to help responsible purchasers make an educated choice. This is done through the VSA website, outreach to diverse communities and partnerships with consumer protection organizations.

In 2011-2012, the Consumer Services team dealt with roughly 1800 enquiries. The top reasons for consumers contacting the VSA remain allegations of loss caused by various misrepresentations. Consumer Services Officers conduct a professional initial assessment of issues involved, communicate with both parties and then select an appropriate action from a broad spectrum of dispute resolution options.

While the volume of initial enquiries is quite high, not all enquiries warrant investigation. Effective case management works to the benefit of all parties involved in a complaint – at all times ensuring timely communication of options and outcomes.

Motor Dealer Customer Compensation Fund

Established in 1995, the Motor Dealer Customer Compensation Fund (MDCCF) was created to reimburse consumers for eligible financial losses related to the purchase or lease of a motor vehicle, purchase of an extended warranty or service plan, or consignment of a motor vehicle in a transaction with a licensed motor dealer, particularly in circumstances where the dealer is no longer in business. The current maximum amount of compensation that may be awarded is $20,000 per loss.

As a result of significant payouts, the fund is being replenished through mandatory $300 annual contributions from all licensed dealers in British Columbia. The VSA is responsible for the administration of the fund, including collecting contributions, operational support and accounting. As of March 31, 2012, the balance was estimated at approximately $1 million.

During 2011–2012, the VSA received 36 claims, ten of which were handled through the VSA internal dispute resolution system without involvement of the MDCCF Board. Claims against the Fund are adjudicated by the Motor Dealer Customer Compensation Fund Board, an independent administrative tribunal.

During 2011-2012, the Board heard 26 new claims and four reconsiderations. The Board approved 12 claims that resulted in $102,000 being paid to consumers. The original decision was upheld in all four reconsideration requests. The application of recently developed policies streamlined the hearing processes and added structure and consistency to the adjudication.

Access to Information

The VSA is a public body under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act. It must be responsive to requests for access to records it holds. In fiscal year 2011-2012, the VSA processed ten requests for access to records. The requesting parties varied and included other licensing bodies, government, motor dealers and complainants. The VSA has never been investigated by the British Columbia Privacy Commissioner.

Ombudsperson

The decisions made by the VSA are reviewable by the provincial Ombudsperson. The Ombudsperson reviews decisions to ensure a fair process was followed, including clarity and transparency in arriving at those decisions. No complaint to the Ombudsperson was found to be substantiated this year.

Communications

The primary vehicle for both industry and consumers continued to be the VSA website. With 80% of the website traffic generated by industry activities, improvements based on industry feedback were made at the end of the fiscal year. Changes will continue to be implemented to improve content and usability.

The Level II salesperson certification course remained one of the VSA's most effective communication tools. The course sessions are unique in providing an open two-way conversation about the role of the VSA and evaluation of the agency's efforts.

As in past years, email Bulletins and Dealer Alerts continue to be important tools for reaching dealers and salespeople with targeted and time-sensitive information.

In addition to the consumer sections of the website, strategies for reaching consumers include limited news releases and participation in trade shows and consumer events. The Vancouver International Auto Show remains the cornerstone annual event and drives the development of new ways to engage consumers in conversation. This year saw the successful addition of a Plinko game board to the usual printed materials and participation by more than 20 staff members. Resources developed for the auto show are used throughout the following year.

Finance and Administration

The VSA's track record of balanced budgets and modest surpluses continued this year. Licensing revenue remained stable despite uncertainty in the vehicle sale marketplace that mandated conservative budgeting going into the fiscal year. Other revenue sources dipped slightly and expenses continued to grow modestly along with inflation. As a result, gross revenues of $4,706,970 covered all expenditures, leaving a surplus of just $79,699. This very modest surplus was added to a prudent operating reserve.

Highlights of the year included:

- The agency continued to have very strong cash reserves – a necessity given a minimum of $1.6 million in unearned revenue from accrued licence fees
- Licensing fees represented 74% of the agency budget, with administration fees, course revenues and other income making up the balance
- Modest investments were made in information technology and facilities to assist in providing efficient, cost-effective and timely service

The 2011-2012 Audited Financial Statements were the first prepared by MNP LLP and reflect a fund accounting presentation for the first time.
